

Problem Statement

College Students don't have access to reasonably priced necessities on campus.

Students who live on campus at the University of South Carolina have limited access to reasonably priced necessities. This problem mainly affects students who do not have a car on campus. Not only that but affects students who don't have the access to extra funds for said overpriced necessities. This causes students to use meal plan dollars that could be directly used for daily meals for nutrition. This matters because students are already having to deal with paying for their overly expensive tuition and housing. They shouldn't have to worry about having to pay for overly priced items that are needed for a college student's everyday life.
